Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-3, 5-8, 20 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Gould et al. (6,578,435) (hereinafter Gould).

Gould teaches all the features of the instant invention including a connector assembly (10) having inlet and outlet section to be connected in between two devices and having a connection channel (28) formed therein. A bypass channel is formed spaced apart the pressure drop generating means (30). A volume flow-detecting device (20, 46) comprising a mass flow sensor device is assigned to the bypass channel. In the instant case the bypass channel is formed of cavity and taught as being extended within the housing if needed (col. 3, lines 55+). Gould also teaches the use of temperature sensor in conjunction with the pressure measurement in order to adjust pressure measurements.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 9-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gould. Gould teaches all the features of the instant invention except for the structure of the housing including a second housing including a receiver housing and the sensor housed in the receiver housing. Such a modification would be an inherent change to the structure to prevent the sensor from external sources. As to the types of pressure drop generating means, it is well known in the flow metering art where different types of pressure drop generating means are used, such as, orifice type, venture type, capillary type and screen type. As to the elbow type device where the sensor is positioned diametrically opposite the line connection, it would be obvious to a skilled individual to provide the sensor and the pressure drop generating means downstream of an elbow section where the sensor would be diametrically opposite the incoming line. Such a modification would be functionally equivalent to the one that has a sensor positioned in a straight section.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claim 4 is allowed.

Conclusion

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
